PA NEWC OBSERVES

Since the building of a series of small dams along the Neshannock river, the view from the East Washington and South Mill street bridges is something lovely.

Illustrating the old axiom that "the grass is always greener on the other side of the fence" was the cow in an Atlantic avenue field which, on bended knees, was nibbling the tufts of grass on the "greener side." The bovine's head barely fitted under the fence.

Motorists and truck drivers would save themselves and the street car operators trouble if they took more care in parking their machines on Long avenue. They should be parked as close to the curb as possible.
Even at that, there will be very little room to spare when the trolley comes along.

It sounded like the opening of a battle to residents on the outskirts of the city as the hunting season got under way this morning. One of Pa. Newc's boys reported the firing.

Local Democrats Demand Retention Of Postmistress

Following a vigorous protest to

MINERS ORDERED

Outright Recognition Of Miner's Union Is Not Accorded In Agreement

(International News Service)
PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—President Roosevelt's peace treaty between steel company operators of captive coal mines and thousands of striking miners met its first test in the Western Pennsylvania coal field today as the strikers gathered to vote ratification or rejection of the agreement.

Officials of the United Mine workers last night ordered the men back into the pits. The response to this was the planning of two meetings of local leaders in the strife-ridden bituminous coal field today to vote on whether or not they will return to their jobs.

Want Recognition
The miners struck two months ago for outright union recognition.
Since that time they have spurned concession after concession, sticking strictly to their demand:
"We want recognition."

The president's peace pact does not provide outright recognition.
Under the peace agreement, the men are to return to work without discrimination with the company pledged to deal with representatives elected by the men themselves—whether or not such representatives are officials of the United Mine workers of America.

Mary Ryan, insurgent leader who is sponsoring one of the meetings today, said he would put the issue squarely up to the men themselves.
He added:

"If the men want to go back to work, I'm not standing in their way.
But I don't think the captive mine agreement is satisfactory."

The meetings today, at Grindstone and Gates, were to be ad-

Ask Election Boards To Count Vote For Candidates First

The election on Tuesday, November 7, will be an important election in Lawrence county, but in addition it will be an election that will take considerable time to count. Not only are officers for the city and county to be elected, but there are amendments to the state constitution, the matter of beverage licenses, the election of delegates for or against repeal of the 18th amendment, and Sunday baseball.

To count each ballot through by hand taking up another one will carry the returns far into the next morning. Because of the intense interest in the election here boards are asked to co-operate with the citizens and the New Castle News by counting first, the vote for the various offices. After that take up the amendments and other questions at issue.

In this way you will be helping get the returns to the voters early and will expedite getting a total count in the county. The splendid co-operation of election boards in the past has been appreciated and your co-operation in the coming election will be appreciated likewise.

MEERMANS WILL LEAD
INSTITUTE DISCUSSION
R. L. Meermans, general secretary of the New Castle Y. M. C. A., will have charge of a special institute in connection with the district leaders' institute to be held at Butler on Thursday, November 2. Mr. Meer-mans will direct the work which has to do with physical leaders' corps.
Philo C. Dix, state secretary, will give the principal address at the dinner and Charles E. Ford, state boys' work secretary, will be present to lead the institute especially for Hit-Y club leaders. Other groups will be arranged for Gra-Y leaders, and the community clubs, and a number of leaders from New Castle will attend this central west gathering.

Paul Dingledy has returned to his desk at the Pennsylvania Power system following several days absence.

Dr. and Mrs. A. Womer, of

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 1.— Indiana's anti-crime war to suppress the reign of terror spread by eight fugitive convicts turned today to a search for four more escaped prisoners from the state penitentiary at Michigan City.

The four felons fled the penitentiary honor farm, bringing the total of fugitives in the last 40 days to 14.
The missing honor farm prisoners are Charles Harris, John Gorham, Walter Shepard and Elmer Baker.
Two new machine gun barricades with picked national guardsmen in charge were erected last night at important highway intersections, but

Mummers Parade In South Side District Attracts Thousands

election night, or the Yale bowl on the day of the Harvard game, or the world's fair on a big day and you have some idea of what the South Side looked like last night, when the annual Hal-low'en celebration was held.

Over on the banks of the Big Run today there are a lot of records lying broken and shattered, some of them for the number of spectators, some for the number of Mummers, others for the quality of the mum-mer costumes. All of them were broken flatter than a short player in a bull market Tuesday night for the celebration marked a new record in crowds down there. A record that can't be broken much in future years unless the folks stand on each other's shoulders.

Weather Perfect

The doctor ordered if the doctor had been ordering, fact is it was suited for a spring festival or young ladies winding a May pole on the greensward, tra la la la, but there wasn't much of that. It was a Hal-low'en celebration and parade and from Division Street to Mill and from Belmont to Moravia every side street was jammed with automobiles, and the line of march was packed back against the buildings.

If the South Side Board of Trade and the South Side business men were out to make a record they did it. It was estimated there were 35, 000 people in the South Side and anybody who didn't believe it had the option of counting them.

Seven bands were in the line of march, the South Side Band, the Senior High, the Franklin Junior, the Washington Junior, the Croton, the VFW drum corps and the Sons of Veterans Drum corps. In the line of march were upwards of 3,500 mummers and the entire celebration passed off without a squabble or a fight or a sock in the schmozzle.

Hartzell Huston, the general chairman, Ivor V. Davis the Grand Marshall, the aides, the judges, and all the committees clicked like a

SEEK TO SHELVE
PARTISAN ISSUES

(International News Service)
HARRISBURG, Nov. 1.—Confronted with a special session of the general assembly on November 13, political and legislative leaders met with Gov. Gifford Pinchot again today in an effort to sidetrack politics and agree on major issues.

The first conference, the governor reported, made "satisfactory progress toward a legislative program.
He has since announced the date of the session but withheld the formal proclamation.

While liquor control stands out in the conferences, approximately a dozen other subjects are being discussed. Among the other subjects reliably reported to be included in the call are:
Old age pensions, coal strikes, minimum wages and maximum hours, milk, public service rates, relief, educational finances, banking and insurance legislation, laws enabling the state to participate in the federal recovery campaign, and a revision of the department of labor and industry appropriation to restore the bureau of medication eliminated by legislators last spring.

But, despair not, dear friends, for here are the snapshots-as-they-might-have-been, printed from an overdeveloped mind via typewriter to this page of the daily pulp:

Mickey Mouse was in the march, complete from whiskers to the tip of his tail. Except for a smug expression that seemed to indicate that he had just eaten the cat and all her kittens, the fellow looked legitimate enough to set a trap for.

He was fresh from Malt Dizzy's ink bottle, like as not.

Figuring prominently in the galaxy of unreality were those old meanies, Frankenstein, Dracula and Hyde, who were atrocious as ever, and scared three little children into wanting to fight them.

There were witches of all kinds,
yes, perhaps even some sandwiches.
Gracie Allen was searching frantically through the crowd for her brother, Ben Bernie (we knew it was Ben on account of the sign on his back) was singing the dachshund song. (You know, something about "he's a long, little doggie, he's a long, little doggie.") Emaciated skeletons emanated out of nowhere and after dancing around in their bones under the judges' stand, the mummy crew disappeared into the atmosphere. The stolid and stoical

Half Million Hunters Out

Dry Weather Gives Advantage To Game Says Game Official

BIRD HUNTING ON STAGGERED DATES

(International News Service) HARRISBURG, Nov. 1.—Unusually warm weather and overcast skies ushered in Pennsylvania's small game season today.

An estimated half million hunters took to field and forest in search of rabbits, squirrels, pheasants, quail, grouse, and pheasants.

State game officials viewed the situation and decided the hunters, rather than the hunter, had the advantage. Woodlands and fields are dry and the crackle of twigs and leaves under the feet of stalking nimrod provides a warning for the wary animal.

Birds may be hunted only on the 16 days listed on the staggered program, while rabbits and squirrels may be sought every day except Sunday during November. Today and tomorrow are the week's bird days. The big game season gets under way December 1.

The court finds that this exception is without merit. The court holds that the distribution as ordered was just and equitable and directs that the reward be paid according to the original order. The amount of the reward to be distributed is $3200. The amounts which each officer is to receive runs from $25 to $250.

was pretty heavy after daylight in his neighborhood.

Weather conditions could not have been any better for Halloween than they were last evening. A hazy autumn moon shone down and the temperature was just right. It was one of the nicest evenings that has been noted in years and an immense throng of celebrators took advantage of the occasion.

There was a sound of popping guns around the northern outskirts of the city at daybreak today, indicating that many hunters got out at the earliest possible moment on the first day of the small game hunting season. Numerous rabbits were noted that had scurried inside the city limits this morning, apparently playing safety first.

Evidences of some mild celebration of Halloween in various parts of the city were to be seen this morning, although no serious damage was reported.

One had only to be a spectator at last night's Halloween parade on the south side to realize that New Castle can proudly boast of many a fine band and bugle and drum corps. Most of them were on parade with the mummies.

According to postoffice officials here, President Roosevelt has received many a letter from New Castle businessmen within the past two weeks. The letters, invited by the president himself, contained their statistical answers to what effects the NRA has had. Out of the thousands of answers that go to the White House a fairly accurate verdict on its benefits will be determined.

Men keep souvenirs of all sorts, but that which Prof. J. L. Moser, one-time New Castle writing teacher, prizes the most, is his batch of 50,000 specimens of the handwriting of men and women who once did their best to develop the free-arm movement under him. Mr. Moser, to be honored at a party here on November 10, has the attic of his Spruce street home packed with cartons of penmanship samples. If only some residents could see now what fine writing they once could produce, we'd know they'd almost hesitate to claim the samples. Mr. Moser can't see much in the writing teaching methods of today.

Who's the "Mayor"?

Congressman Norton Senator King

The question as to who should bear the title of "Mayor of Washington," the distinction bestowed upon the legislator who handles the affairs relating to the District of Columbia, is a debatable matter in the capital these days. Although the title usually is given the chairman of the committee on the District of Columbia, who now is Congressman Mary Norton of New Jersey, Senator William H. King of Utah, appears to be usurping the honor as a result of his activities as chairman of the senate district committee.

Today Trooper Hughmanick displayed a microscopic glass which he believes was taken from a school in Mercer county.

It also was pointed out that the Highland Heights robbery of the Earl store had been "cleaned up" by the arrests.

Trooper Hughmanick said this morning he has not yet grilled the persons taken into custody Sunday night.

They are Mrs. Della Rausch, several sons, and a daughter, Mrs. George Zalick.

Some Located in Youngstown A new angle came today when Hughmanick said that some of the articles stolen from this city were located in the house of Frank Rausch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rausch, of Youngstown. He was taken into custody here by city police and is in jail charged with receiving stolen goods.

Walter Rausch, head of the Rausch family, and George Zalick, who is married to Rausch's daughter, escaped after it is alleged Zalick, twice at Hughmanick, who could not return the fire on account of children of the families standing in line of his revolver. The two men leaped through the front door. Zalick shot while Constable J. D. Fallon was out of the house summoning the city police patrol.

The last heard of Rausch was his arrival in Youngstown, and Zalick at New Bedford, apparently headed for Youngstown.

In addition to the trip to Pittsburgh, County Chairman Stone on Thursday wrote a letter to Postmaster General James A. Farley in which he assails State Commissioner Baer for his treatment of postmasters, and for his preemption of all the patronage rights in the county.

In his letter to Farley, Mr. Stone says among other things, "as county chairman and in my personal capacity I wish to go on record as being absolutely opposed to this removal. Mrs. Brashear has conducted this office to the entire satisfaction of the patrons and I understand her efficiency has never been questioned either within or outside of the department. To remove her would be a grave injustice to both Mrs. Brashear and her small children who need all the help they can possibly receive. I sincerely trust that this appointment will not be disturbed regardless of the change in classification."

"May I add that in the matter of the West Pittsburgh postoffice, neither I nor as far as I can discover, any of the other party officers were consulted by Mr. Baer. Democratic state committee, who seems to have taken upon himself full authority in all Democratic matters in Lawrence county."

Stone's letter goes on to protest against the removal of Postmaster MacNab in a "brutal and unjust manner" but classifies the removal of Mrs. Brashear as "even more brutal and revolting."

Of the first four reports of injuries, only one victim's condition was regarded as serious. He was John Sholski, shot in the thigh by a companion when he walked into the line of fire at a rabbit near Punxsutawney.

Shot In Face

William Peter, of Scranton, was shot in the head and face in a woods at Thompson and removed to Barnes hospital at Susquehanna where he declined to reveal the circumstances of the accident.

Accidental discharge of his gun while he was cleaning it at his home in Altoona prevented Wesley Mills, 30, from setting out on a hunting expedition. The shot entered his left forearm. The fourth victim was Warden Spires, 45, of Brush Valley Township, who was brought to Indiana hospital with gunshot wounds in the chest. He said he was shot by another hunter near his home.

Myers Richardson, 48, suffered gunshot wounds when his gun was discharged accidentally while hunting near Doylestown, while Herbert Fisher of Bristol township suffered similar wounds when his gun also was accidentally discharged.

Near Easton, two hunters were struck by charges fired by other nimrods who mistook the victims for game. They were Lester Jones, 38, wounded in thigh and leg, and William Doffert, 61, struck in chest and groin.

dressed by William Hynes, president of Union District No. 4, and Anthony Cavalcante, a representative of Gov. Clifford Pinchot, both of whom were to urge the men to return to the pits.

Hynes said: "I understand the men's disappointment, but if they do not go back to work, the union is doomed in the Connellsville coke region and in other captive mines. If we refuse to go back to work, it will give the Frick company and other captive operators the opportunity to replace union men with non-union workers."

Will Return to Jobs Philip Murray, International vice president, said he expected the men would return to their jobs "in a day or two."

The H. C. Frick Coke company last night posted notices asserting the mines would reopen when adequate protection was assured. Sheriff Harry E. Mackney said he would furnish as many deputies as necessary to assure the protection.

FEWER JUVENILE COMMITMENTS

CHILDREN appear to be better behaved today than they were five years ago. At least, statistics from Harrisburg reveal a decline in commitments to juvenile institutions in marked contrast to the upward trend noted in 1928. The depression is credited with bringing about the change. On this assumption poverty and plain living are again the props of virtue, as they were in the puritan code and in novels and dramas of our pre-war literary history.

The explanations are various. Some welfare experts think that families are receiving more moral guidance since mothers have ceased to be gainfully employed outside the household. Others suggest that the jobless dad sitting around the home is attending to disciplinary duties that keep Willie walking a straight line circumspectly. A third hypothesis is that courts and police are more lenient these days in dealing with minors who break the laws.

Another theory is that the children themselves, like the rest of us, have been responsible to the demands of the economic pressure and have been maintaining the behavior standards which they annually practice in the brief period preceding Christmas. With a scarcity of money, to be sure, joy-rides and other adventures can not be readily financed. But persons who still adhere to the doctrine of infant depravity will believe that the reform has come less from within the children than from external causes.

SURPLUS STOCKS

Over the heads of producers of raw materials in all parts of the world there have hung for several years excess stocks of goods, helping to depress prices. Many devices have been resorted to in efforts to reduce these surpluses or to them from piling higher still. Brazil has burned coffee and destroyed acres of coffee trees. The American government has persuaded southern farmers to plow under growing cotton. Producers of sugar and wheat, rubber and copper, oil and tin, have sought by national or international agreement to limit output and to "liquidate" large stocks on hand.

The latest economic survey by the League of Nations, copies of which have just reached this country, provides some reason for believing that at last the glut of goods, produced at prices too low to represent a profit for producers, yet too high to bring them within reach of many who stand in need, is beginning to diminish. Looking back over data which have recently come to hand, the authors of the survey believe it to be "a reasonable inference" that in 1932, "for the first time since the depression began, current production did not exceed industrial buying of raw materials." The figures which they present support this view. World stocks of coffee in the latest month reported are approximately a third less than in the same month last year. There has been a slight increase in the visible supply of cotton. But stocks of wheat, sugar and rubber are slightly down, and substantial reductions have been made in those of tin and silk. Drastic restriction of output, particularly in the mineral industries, is partly responsible for the reversal of the previously established trend. Meantime, "as credit became cheaper and confidence revived in the Autumn of 1932," the manufacturing industries and the wholesale trade began to replenish supplies which had been permitted to run down.

The survey notes as of special interest the fact that in such countries as Australia, New Zealand and Argentina, heavily dependent for their prosperity on prices of raw materials, the balances of commodity trade have gone far to right themselves. It concludes that "the recovery of purchasing power in these countries where the depression began so early is a good omen."—New York Times.

THE TEST OF FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

Fire Prevention Week is over. In every community in the land six days of intensive effort were given to educating the public in the fundamentals of curbing one of the greatest of all menaces to life, property and industrial opportunity. Civic organizations, fire departments, insurance representatives, public officials—all worked for the cause, and an appreciable share of the public listened.

The real test of the week, however, has just begun. The public listened—but will it remember? In past years the memory of most of us was notoriously and tragically short. During the week fire losses went down, and kept to a low level for a short period directly after. Then they rose again to the "normal" level.

Perhaps this week will have different results. Three years of depression have taught us the dangers of waste, of whatever kind. And waste due to fire is the most complete, and the most unnecessary possible. It benefits none. It harms all. It creates unemployment and is a barrier to civic development. It raises taxes and lowers incomes. It is the best friend of hard times.

The things we learned during the week are not difficult to remember. It takes little time and little money to put them into execution in most cases. There is no excuse for forgetting them. They mean money in our pockets, and safer, happier living.

The sponsors of the week, and those who worked for it, have done all they could. It's up to the rest of us now.

HAPPY TENDERFOOT

My back aches, every muscle in my body is sore, my hands are scratched and bruised. I scraped a rock diving into water that was too shallow for deep diving and pulled three patches of skin off my right leg. . . . Physically, I'd hardly say that I'm in the best possible shape. A child, if he was a rather big child, could tip me over. . . . But I had a good time for two days and I feel at peace with the world.

A week-end at a lake high in the mountains will do that to anybody. We ate too much and worked too hard, without proper preparation. . . . We made a batch of biscuits, and they were really good. We took sun baths and didn't shave for three days. . . . We attached a washbowl to a wall set the fittings in place—and it actually worked when we turned the faucet and hoped the cool water would flow out. . . . We decided that a big rock that had been in place since the earth first heaved itself up into a mountain should be in another place, instead. So with a mallet and two planks and with incredible, clumsy effort, we had our way with that rock—and nearly wrecked ourselves doing it. . . . And then we ate a big meal and dozed and went swimming in the cold water. . . . And ate another meal and played cards and went to sleep watching a big white moon and all the pale little twinkling stars, and woke up with the morning sun in our faces and the team came home again. . . . And even though an automobile misbehaved all the way and highways were jammed with traffic and the trip was long and wearying, we didn't care, we were happy. We'd been somewhere, we'd done something real!

And it seems to me that's the only play, the only work worth while. We had used our bodies and our minds properly by sending them against obstacles that demanded for their conquest all the energy that was in us. . . . And that sort of vacation gives a peace to the spirit that can come in no other way and stores up memories that are precious and indelible. . . . So weary and bruised and deeply conscious of having been a tenderfoot in the mountains, I don't care, I'm happy and I'd gladly do it again. So would anybody.

A darky named Sam borrowed $25 from his friend Tom and gave him note for the amount. Time went on and the note became long past due. One day the two men met on the street and Tom stopped and said with determination:

"Look, heah man, when you goin' to pay that note?"

"I ain't got no money now," replied Sam, "but am goin' to pay it as soon as I kin."

"To be sayin' that for months," retorted Tom, "but it don't get me no money. Ef you don't pay that money here and now, you know what I'm goin' to do? I'm goin' to burn yer old note; then whar'll you be at?"

"Yes, you will, yas you will!" Sam shouted. "Jes' you burn dat note o' mine, and I'll sure pop a lawsuit on to yo'."

TAKING YOUR MEDICINE

Are you one of those who yell much for justice.

Just suppose justice had been meted to you in many experiences throughout your own life.

Would you have fared as well, in many instances.

Many times you have deserved adverse circumstances.

Considering everything, you have been mighty lucky in what life has brought you.

If you had been punished in proportion to your misdeeds you might have something to complain about.

Generally speaking, people who most frequently make the most caustic remarks about not having been justly dealt with by those responsible, are those who have had the larger number of escapes from the punishments they deserved.

You have had bad breaks, everyone has, but your good breaks have outnumbered the bad ones, if you are a normal human being.

You can recall many instances when you were most fortunate in avoiding what you have deserved, can you not?

But think of the times that you have proclaimed that injustice had been done in your case, even when you knew you yourself were in the wrong.

Think it over and be willing to take your medicine without flinching.

In Face Of Strike Menace

Lack Of Agreement On Needs Of Agriculture Creates Continuing Problem But Patience With Recovery Program Is Urged

Comments in the nature of advice to the farmers come with the farm strike threat in grain areas. There is disagreement among editors as to the merits of farm-aid projects, but a general tendency to advise that the agricultural population have patience with the efforts of the Administration to show improvement.

"Agriculture is an essential industry and there are few who do not wish it to be reasonably prosperous," says the OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES. "But there is no magic that will lift it suddenly from depression to prosperity, any more than there is such magic for urban business men."

That paper contends that "in the readjustment, the farmers have fared better than most." THE MADISON WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL believes that dramatic actions in this sphere "serve only as gestures that call the attention of the public to the drab outlook." It calls upon the Administration for "a constructive agricultural program."

The PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN sees tendencies toward the opening of the subject in the coming session of Congress and the MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL foresees a great battle in Congress. THE SALT LAKE DESERT NEWS observes that "one of the outstanding historical facts of this era is the militancy of the farmers and the influence of their voice in government," considered in relation to the fact that "prices of goods they buy are rising at the same time that grain prices are going down."

"The agricultural administration is facing a serious crisis and is going to have to recognize it," in the opinion of the DES MOINES TRIBUNE, a view which runs parallel to the statement from the NEW YORK SUN that although there has been "an unusual advance this year in farm prices," nevertheless "the lag between non-agricultural and agricultural prices appears to threaten further distress among the farmers."

Declaring that "the essence of the whole program is in the Roosevelt statement that 'we are building, stone by stone, the columns that will support the edifice of recovery,'" the MIAMI DAILY NEWS holds that "the farmers have been none but a fool would abandon the effort for another plunge in a sky-rocket."

"Agriculture must face the fact," advises the TOPEKA DAILY CAPITAL, "that the American market can not at former profitable prices take the full product of an agricultural acreage which formerly disposed of a large part of its output in foreign markets." The Capital adds that "foreign trade seems far from being revived."

The BALTIMORE SUN observes that the wheat grower's present estate "is slightly worse than his estate in 1932." THE OAKLAND TRIBUNE believes it is "urgent" that a way be found to bring a solution to the problem of the Middle West.

Emphasizing the wheat "carry over," the NEW YORK TIMES advises that "this practical situation of supply and demand has prevented any such continuously sustained advance in wheat prices as had been hoped for."

"On the surface" says the CINCINNATI TIMES-STAR, "the strike is a manifestation of impatience at a time when from everybody patience is called for." That paper, however, feels that "the Federal government has done more for them than ever attempted before."

THE WORCESTER STAR-TELEGRAM contends that "the farmers have less reasonable excuse for scribbling than have the labor unions, and they admitted have none." The COLUMBIAN adds that "the farmers have less reasonable excuse for scribbling than have the labor unions, and they admitted have none."

WITH THE CROWD

Like little girls and little boys,
How pleased we are with glittering toys!
We wander round and round about
And listen to the barkers shout.
We purchase at some gaudy stall
Delights that have no worth at all.
We ride in cars which nowhere go Merely an instant's thrill to know;
Watch dancing girls who cannot dance,
But merely wiggle, squirm and prance.

Still, dull indeed this life would be If always wholly sane were we.
If added years removed us far From what our little children are
And robbed us of the joy of play
And many a happy holiday.
Then men and women would become Severely cold and grave and glum, Censorious of mind and tongue
And bitter comrades for the young.

So with the jostling crowd I run
To share the bliss of foolish fun;
I linger where the crowd is thick;
To watch a shrewd magician's trick;
Buy trinkets which I do not need,
Instead of solemn books to read.
I ride on cars which nowhere go
But round and round, a thrill to know.

And thank the Lord, though growing gray,
I haven't lost the wish to play.

1704—Alexander Selkirk, aged 28, a Scotch-born buccaner, quarreled with the captain of his ship, was put ashore at his own request on Juan Fernandez Island (in the S. Pacific, off Chile). His experiences there until he was discovered and taken off by a privateer, suggested, to Daniel Defoe newspaperman, the best-selling novel of all time: Robinson Crusoe. The story, first published in 1719, already had become a classic by the time Selkirk, rehabilitated as a lieutenant on a private-chasing man-of-war, died in 1723.

Plans Ready To Open U. S.-State Job Office Here

Announce Full-Time Branch Will Be Opened On Thursday Morning

OPENING QUARTERS IN JOHNSON BUILDING

Arrangements today were completed for a full-time employment service in New Castle, which is to be located in the Johnson building, under the supervision of R. L. Meermans. The state of Pennsylvania has for a number of years maintained a part-time employment office here in cooperation with the Y. M. C. A., but the increased duties of the employment service has necessitated an enlarged service for the city.

To Be Full-Time Office.
According to Mr. Meermans, the office will handle a general placement service for men and women and separate waiting rooms will be available. The unemployed men and women of New Castle are invited to place their applications on file with this service and the employers are urged to cooperate with the local bureau in securing whatever help they may need.

The securing of a full-time office for New Castle, according to A. W. Motley, director of the bureau of employment at Harrisburg, is due to a great extent to the efforts of the advisory council, composed of New Castle business people, who have been interested in an efficient public employment service for this vicinity. The advisory council is made up of L. B. Round, chairman; John A. Butler, Miss Della Glenn, Charles L. Hughes, C. M. Propst, Robert L. Wallace, W. W. Walls, Dr. G. S. Bennett, A. Bruce Ewing and R. L. Meermans, secretary.

Will Hire For U. S. Jobs.

In addition to normal placement work in connection with industry, the local office will be called upon by the Public Works board to select men that will be needed on any public works project that is undertaken in Lawrence county. The exception division of the N. R. A. has also asked the public employment bureau to render assistance in the distribution of skilled labor.

The New Castle office will be jointly administered by the state and federal governments under the provisions of the Wagner act, which created a national system of public employment services.

W. Earl Leslie has been named as men's examiner for the office while Mrs. Ethel Dunkerly will supervise the employment of women. Hours will be from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. daily, while on Saturdays the bureau will close at noon.

Sons Of Veterans And Auxiliary Have Annual Masque Ball

Large Crowd Attend Dance In City Building — Affair
Honors Herman Gilbert

The annual masque ball of the Sons of Union Veterans and their auxiliary was held Monday evening in the city hall with a crowd of nearly 300 in attendance. A large delegation of guests from Youngstown and other outside points was there.

The evening was spent in dancing both round and square, with music by a splendid orchestra. Prizes donated by Fred House, of Youngstown, O., and Frank Hill, of New Castle, were given for the best costumes.

During the course of the evening Frank Hill introduced Herman Gilbert in whose honor the party was given. After a short talk by Mr. Gilbert, who is the retiring commander, the new commander, Walter Palmer and General Chairman George Partington were called upon for a few remarks.

Plans for social events of the coming year were discussed by Frank Hill and General Chairman Partington. The ball was one of the most successful in years and was just another indication that the Sons of Union Veterans and their auxiliary know how to plan real events.

McCormick at one time was reported engaged to Pola Negri, former movie star, though both denied the rumor. His first wife was the Edith Rockefeller McCormick, daughter of John D. Rockefeller. They were divorced in 1922. A few months later he married Ganna Walska, the singer. This union was ended by divorce in 1931.

Seek Change In Steel Code

Truckmen Of Nation Claim "Joker" Is Contained In Code

JOHNSON ASKED TO MAKE CHANGE

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Demand for removal of a "joker" in the steel code, allegedly framed to aid railroads in their battle for business against the $1,500,000,000 motor trucking industry, were before Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator today.

The demand was made by the American Trucking Association, composed of the leading motor freight lines of the nation. The so-called "joker" is a provision under which steel companies must include in their price the railroad freight rate to point of destination.

The effect of this, officials of the trucking association contend, is to remove the advantage they may have over railroads in charging lower rates.

Similar provisions were proposed in the cement, structural steel and bolt and nut industries.

While advocates of the provision emphatically deny that discrimination against the trucking industry is intended, the truck owners point out that the industries favoring the plan all do a big business with railroads.

The fight, which has been going on behind the scenes for sometime, came into the open at a minor code hearing on the bolt, nut and screw industry.

J. S. Reynolds, speaking for the trucking association, protested against the proposal to include the provision in this code and disclosed that a brief had been filed urging removal from the steel code, already approved by President Roosevelt.

Backers of the provision in the bolt, nut and screw code retorted that trucking lines of the country have no stable rates, indulge in rebates and that it is necessary in operation of codes to use railroad rates to stabilize prices.

They explain that the provision was intended to prevent "chiseling" by manufacturers, who would obtain rebates and special rates from motor truck lines so they could undersell their competitors.

All Criminals Must Register At Akron, Ohio

(International News Service) AKRON, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Registration of all criminals in Akron was made mandatory under a far-reaching law adopted by city council as authorities moved to stamp out racketeering and harass members of gangdom.

Provisions of the law provide that the registrations must be made within 48 hours after the ordinance becomes effective November 30 at 5 p. m. Gangsters who visit the city also must "register" within 48 hours of their arrival, the ordinance stipulated.

Believed to be the first piece of legislation of its kind ever enacted in Ohio, the law set up a penalty of six months' imprisonment, a fine of $500, or both for violation.

Mayor Nelson Sparks, in urging council to aid in the war against racketeering, commented that "if every city in Ohio should pass such an ordinance, organized gangs would be quickly wiped out."

When a gangster "registers," according to the law, he must give his full life's history and the making of any fictitious statement will be punishable by the same penalty provided for actual violation.

Prince Plan For Railroad System Strongly Opposed

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—A rising tide of opposition from business and civic leaders grew today against the Prince plan for railroad consolidation, which would leave only the Pennsylvania railroad to serve this city and result in the elimination of shops and railroads throughout the eastern and central portions of the state.

The proposed plan, sponsored by Frederick H. Prince, Boston banker and railroad director, is now being studied by Joseph Eastman, federal transportation co-ordinator. The transportation committee of the Philadelphia chamber of commerce met today to map its fight against the plan, which is merely a proposal and is being studied unofficially by Eastman.

Business men at Reading, where the huge Reading railroad shops would be eliminated under the plan, likewise made known their vigorous opposition.

Mayor Is Out Hunting Rabbits

He's just one of the 4,000 today and he's traveling through the fields "kicking up" rabbits then "knocking 'em off" with a double barrel shotgun.

Yes, folks, he's no other than Mayor Charles Mayne who has been hunting for—well, ever so long.

He never misses the opportunity to fare forth on the opening day of the hunting season.

The mayor is quite a sportsman. He likes all kinds of athletics, knows his fishing with or without line and hook, has brought down big game in cold Alaska and small game hereabouts.

"You mean it makes a difference how they are washed?"

"Of course—cake-soap rubbing weakens elasticity, then silk tends to break—runs start. LUX saves elasticity—the silk gives instead of breaking. Stockings last longer!"

DECLARE TRUCE IN MID-WEST FARM STRIKE

Governors Will Present Program

Proposals Of Farmers Holiday Association Is Approved By Conference

STATE LEADERS CALL OFF STRIKE

By THOMAS A. FLEDGE
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DES MOINES, Ia., Nov. 1.—With governors of four states enroute to Washington today to place their farm relief program demands before President Roosevelt for action, national farmers holiday association leaders declared a virtual "truce" in the farm strike.

The only section which disregarded the "truce" was in Wisconsin where producers of milk declared they would continue picketing the roads to cut off the milk supply of the cities.

Immediate "pegging" of prices for all major agricultural products and currency inflation were the principal demands made in the relief program to be submitted to the president.

Practically the entire program of the farmers holiday association won the approval of governors at the nine-state agricultural conference which closed here last night. Four governor members of the conference were dispatched to Washington to push for its adoption there. They are to confer with the president Thursday.

Call Strike Off
On the strength of the strong support promised by the governors, Arnold Gilbert, Wisconsin farm holiday president, called the strike off altogether in that state, and Milo Reno, national president, said picketing would be discontinued in other states.

Governors Clyde Herring, of Iowa; A. G. Schmedeman, of Wisconsin; Floyd B. Olson, of Minnesota; and William Langer, of North Dakota, were delegated to seek President Roosevelt's acceptance of the farm holiday program as slightly modified by the conference.

The relief program as it is to be put up to the president provides, in its major points:

1.—That agriculture be put under an NRA code which would authorize fixing of minimum prices equal to cost of production plus a reasonable profit. Administrators of the code also would determine the amount of the several basic agricultural products to be sold on the domestic market. The administrators would be farmers, the government and consumers.

2.—That, pending adoption of the code the government arbitrarily fix minimum prices at which farm commodities could be sold on the domestic market, the prices to allow for a reasonable profit above cost of production. Authority to do this, the conference declared, already is in the hands of the president under the agriculture adjustment act.

3.—That currency be immediately inflated and that the fourth liberty loan be paid in new currency rather than being retired by another interest-bearing bond issue.

4.—That government refinancing of farm loans be liberalized by higher appraisals and that interest on government refinancing loans be reduced.

5.—That both the president and the governors of the several states do everything in their power to defer further foreclosure of mortgages and evictions until farmers have had a reasonable opportunity to avail themselves of the credit facilities already offered by the government.

6.—That the president declare an embargo on foreign grains, oils, fats, and other agricultural products competing with American products until reciprocal trade agreements are completed with foreign countries.

Branch Relief Stations Ease Distributing Task, Avoid Jams Once Created

The Lawrence County Emergency Relief board today announced that a new city-wide set-up for distributing food relief orders to New Castle's needy families has been completed, unless the relief load of the coming winter demands the creation of additional supply points. Relief outside the city is administered by the various towns and localities.

At four locations, the central fire station, South Jefferson street; the Scioto street station, Scioto street; the Rescue Mission, South Mercer street, and at the Salvation Army, Water street, food orders are being distributed.

City Council's permission to use five of the city's fire stations as food-distributing centers was given some time ago, but board officials are of the belief that just two will be needed.

Volunteer workers, donating their time and service to the task, are supervising the distributing centers, it was pointed out.

To Relieve Long Waits
Miss Beulah Norris, case supervisor for the board, asserted that the distributing stations were opened to relieve congestion at the board headquarters and to keep people from standing in line for long periods of time, waiting for their orders.

After receiving orders at their particular distributing point, applicants go direct to the Carnegie auditorium commissary, South Jefferson street, to exchange them for food supplies.

The Central, Scioto and Rescue Mission centers distribute orders to city residents while the Salvation Army station, on Thursday of each week, supplies people of New Castle's outlying districts with their orders. The latter group may take its orders to the grocery store near est their home for food, eliminating the inconvenience of carrying supplies from the downtown commissary.

Praising the work of the volunteers who have pledged their service for the work, Miss Norris, speaking for the relief board, said that the board will welcome any service volunteers care to give. She expressed a need for several more.

City firemen, she pointed out, are also giving help to the volunteers as they work about the stations.

Not more than 100 families will visit a station in any one day, the board assured city council when it sought the right to establish branch distributing centers.

"We find that the human touch is more direct with volunteer workers at branch points," Miss Norris commented. "The ladies who are working find it a pleasure, and are becoming acquainted with their groups."

The Central station serves people who live north of the Shenango and Neshannock rivers, while the Scioto street station serves people to the south of it. The Mahoningtown, Southside, Sheep Hill and neighborhood districts are served by it. The City Mission station serves the remaining people of New Castle, and the Salvation Army branch serves the suburban folk.

The following volunteers are now at work at the different points:

Central station—Mrs. George Blair, Mrs. James Carson, Mrs. George McKenzie, Mrs. Henry Rapold, Mrs. Robert Garland and Miss Edna Wilson.

Scioto street—Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Reed Megown, Mrs. Charles Randall, and Mrs. Howard Kirk.

Salvation Army—Mrs. Wilson.

City Mission—Staff workers of the relief board are now handling it.

SEVENTH WARD NEWS

Hunters Take To Woods And Fields Early This Morning
Opening Of Small Game Season Finds Many Seventh Warders On Hunting Grounds

Small game hunting season got underway with a blast with the first rays of dawn this morning—and scores of Mahoningtown trigger enthusiasts were right in the center of the activity.

Although noon is a little early for the reports to be floating in, it looked as if the local bagging total would be high as usual. William Stubbs, of West Madison avenue, left in the early hours to do his hunting in the New Wilmington vicinity. He will leave Saturday for Cedar street, Jesse Boak, rural carrier for the Mahoningtown post-office, and Dr. E. L. Vincent, are out in the wide open spaces even as this is being written. George Wilson, of Clayton street, is somewhere in Mercer county. Many others are doing their hunting right out in the Mt. Jackson district.

Crowd From Here Sees South Side's Hallowe'en Parade
Some Interest Shown In Suggestion Of Mahoningtown Masque Ball For Next Year

A crowd of Mahoningtown people witnessed the Hallowe'en festivities on the South Side Tuesday night, and a number of local youngsters, regaled in masquerade costumes of diversified design, took part in the grand parade.

Although not for many years has Mahoningtown had its own observance of Hallowe'en, there is considerable talk about planning some community observance for next year's Hallowe'en. A number of residents have suggested having a Mahoningtown Masquerade Ball, and although a bit early for real thought on the subject, that is the way ideas in the bud bloom into big things.

LOOKS LIKE RECORD NUMBER OF HUNTERS
Local dealers in guns, ammunition and other hunting supplies state their records already indicate that the 1933 season will rival any other in the number of hunters if not the amount of game bagged. The amount of ammunition sold surpasses that of this same time a year ago. A great number of hunting licenses have been distributed here, and many more were secured by seventh ward hunters at the county courthouse.

The World's Fair parade is still going strong at the depots here. The roads are carrying scores of people from New Castle and the surrounding district to and from Chicago every week. Friday and Saturdays are the "big days" but a splendid

On Monday night the Phalanx young men sent false faces, hats and candy to the children, and yesterday, directly after school was over, the boys and girls were bundled into automobiles and whisked off to a "movie" theater. Upon their return they were provided with cider and nuts as a Hallowe'en treat to their more Epicurean natures. Pop corn was popped and the sum total of all was—a very enjoyable time.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Five industrial leaders who have been cooperating with the president as advisers to the national recovery administration, today were expected to relinquish their duties on the advisory board. They are:

The movement, Swope explained, is one of wide reorganization designed to place the recovery administration on a permanent basis.

Fates Against Nick In Hallowe'en Prize Awards

It seems that every year fate goes against Nick Capicola of Scott street, who has been participating in the south side Hallowe'en celebration for the past three years. Nick is a barber.

Three years ago when Capicola first tried his luck as a mummer down on the south side, he failed to impress the judges and was not awarded a prize. During the course of the evening a youngster standing next to Nick decided to hurl a stone at a window. The result was that Nick had a lot of explaining to do to get out of that mixup. Several Slabtown boys thought Nick threw the rock. Despite this, Capicola returned to the south side last year to compete. This time the tables turned and Nick won a prize.

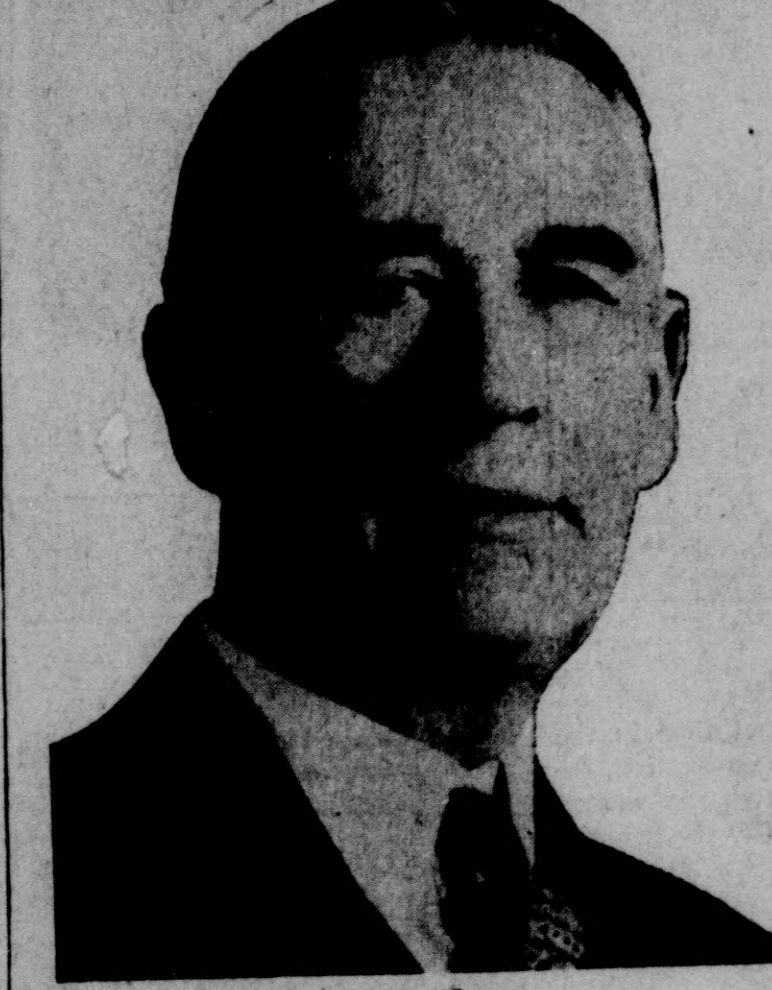

What did he win? A nice white shiny razor. Nick was disappointed because he could not use the razor as he had plenty in his barber shop. He went home feeling blue. Upon hearing that the south side merchants were again going to stage a Hallowe'en celebration this year, the tonsorial artist set to work gathering some old clothes which would make a clever costume.

Nick again appeared in the parade and for the second consecutive year caught the fancy of the judges and won another prize. Opening the package last night he discovered that he had been given a bottle of hair tonic. "Use it yourself," said the prize distributor. Nick sent the crowd of several hundred persons away laughing when he removed his hat. Nick is among the unfortunate who are bald.

YOU MUST BE WARM AS WELL AS SMART IF YOU'RE GOING TO BIG GAME

You can't fully enjoy the big game if you're not warm as well as smart, no matter if your favorite team is winning. A flat sailor collar and big revers of silver fox do the trick on the swanky coat, left. The very latest, in warmth-creating apparel, however, is shown center, in a foot muff and robe of super alpaca which is very warm but light in weight. The tweed sports coat has a fox collar. Beaver epaulets and pull-through ascot collar give a clever and warm neckline to the dark brown coat, right.

Here is District Judge Frank McDonough, Sr., of Denver, who showed himself an ardent supporter of NRA when he ruled that employees may go to court with suits against employers who fail to comply with the wage provisions of the Recovery act. Celebrate Freedom of Press

The 200th anniversary of freedom of the press in North America is being celebrated Saturday by distinguished representatives of the press at East Chester, New York, where the principle was established in the trial of John Peter Zenger in 1733. The trial, which was held on the green of St. Paul's Episcopal church, was the result of Zenger's published account of the 1733 election in which William S. Crosby, British governor of the colony was defeated. Crosby had tried to gag Zenger and then sued him for criminal libel. Zenger was acquitted. Shown are noted American publishers who are members of the honorary committee for the celebration. They are: Adolph Ochs (top left) publisher of the New York Times; William Randolph Hearst (top right) largest individual publisher of newspapers in the United States; Robert R. INGATHERING OF NEW GARMENTS NEXT WEEK IN CASTLETON

Mrs. W. E. Ferver, president of the Needlework Guild of the city, and her various section chairmen are hard at work this week getting everything ready for the Needlework ingathering, which will take place

Thursday and Friday of next week, November 9 and 10.

The membership fee in the Needlework Guild is two new garments, to be used in distribution among the needy and many new members have been added to the roll of the Guild this year and it is anticipated that there will be stacks of new garments on display in the ballroom of the hotel next week.

Each year before the articles are distributed to the various organizations for which they are designated, there is a display made in The Castleton and it is hoped the display this year will exceed that of former years, as it seems the need this winter will be greater than former winters.

The donor may designate just where they want the garments given and the Guild members will see they are delivered.

Throng Turns Out For Annual Hallowe'en Party, Benefit For Pupils

Hallowe'en ghosts and goblins made grand whoopee when a large crowd of west side residents gathered in the west side school building to enjoy the annual Hallowe'en party which the West Side Parent-Teacher chapter sponsored.

Decorated in gay Hallowe'en colors, the school lobby, where the party took place, became the center of fun and frivolity as the parents, teachers and pupils milled in and about the comical exhibition booths and listened to special musical programs.

Miss Theresa Cover was general chairman of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. George Glass, chairman of kitchen arrangements, and Mrs. Chauncey Davis, who supervised the side-show arrangements. Other teachers and parents took charge of them.

Featuring the program were the numbers presented by the concert band of the Mahoning school, directed by Miss Gladys Thomas.

Proceeds of the party, planned as a benefit for the west side girls and boys, amounted to $43.74.

SEEK TO SETTLE WAGE DISPUTE

International Officer Of Bricklayers Coming To Post Office Job

Anticipating an early settlement of the bricklayers' wage controversy which has interrupted progress on New Castle's postoffice, the A. W. Kutsche company, the building's general contractors, today awaited the coming of an international officer of the bricklayers' union from Washington, D. C.

The international official was invited here by telegram late Tuesday to investigate the entire wage payment situation. Meanwhile, the bricklayers, protesting that their employer, the Hoyland & Mercer company, still owes them pay, remained off duty.

The dispute lies between the Hoyland & Mercer firm and its workmen, but the Kutsche concern received the workmen's sworn affidavits that back pay is owing to them.

Word of the controversy was reported to the United States government by the Kutsche company.

Superintendent George J. Murphy, representing the general contractor here, made public this statement as he summarized the situation today:

"The Kutsche company has asked an international official of the bricklayers' union to come to New Castle from Washington to investigate the entire situation. We feel that the brick masons were negligent in not notifying the general contractor or the government representative here that the alleged condition existed until months afterward."

"The Kutsche firm holds the weekly payroll receipts for the men up to October 1, all of which are signed by the brick masons and sworn to by the Hoyland & Mercer company."

Gangs Provide Work For Police

Hallowe'en Pranks Bring Many Calls To Police Last Night

Hallowe'en proved a nightmare for city police and property owners according to reports a window was broken, outhouses upset, milk bottles shattered on streets and corn stalks placed on street car tracks.

A Morton street window was smashed and flying crews of boys operated near County Line and Milton streets, Clayton street, Preston avenue, and West Grant streets.

Boys put an automobile on the sidewalk at Highland and Hillcrest avenues and milk bottles were broken near Carlisle street and Fairmount avenue.

In fact reports drifted into police station from numerous sections and some of the boys have been ordered before Mayor Mayne for investigation Saturday.

In addition to the police efforts to prevent damage, they were called to investigate other reports. One call came from Leasure avenue and another from McClain street.

The Leasure avenue report suspected someone of trying to enter a house. Police found no one. A suspicious car in McClain avenue contained "spooners."

THE OTHER SIDE!

W. J. Baer, State Committeeman and Democratic Nominee for the office of District Attorney has the following message to the voters of New Castle and Lawrence County:

"As it is humanly impossible to see each and every one of you personally, I am taking this method to present my side of the case.

It is the ruling of the President of the United States and the Postmaster General, that no postmasters or postmistresses be removed, until the expiration of their terms, except for cause.

Postmasters of first, second and third class offices receive their appointments from the President and upon confirmation by the Senate, serve a four year term. Postmasters of fourth class offices, those offices with stamp cancellations under $1000.00 per current year, are under selective Civil Service and receive their appointments thru the office of the Postmaster General. They serve for an indeterminate term, (for life) or until a vacancy occurs through resignation, death or removal for cause.

The postmaster at New Castle, a first class office, was removed for cause. U. S. Postal Inspectors (entirely free of political pressure) preferred the charges, four pages of them, and Mr. L. S. MacNab was ordered removed by the Postmaster General as a direct result of those charges. All I, as local Democratic leader had to do with the matter was; the presenting or recommending of the man, to act as postmaster until the President could present a name to the Senate for confirmation.

The situation at the West Pittsburg post office is of an entirely different character. The fact that this office fell from the third class office to one of the fourth class, due to lower receipts, automatically terminated the present incumbent's term under the former classification and the postal department could and did advertise a Civil Service examination for applicants desirous of filling the office. Any one regardless of their politics is eligible to take this examination.

It is particularly unfortunate that the present incumbent is a widow, with dependents and it is gratifying to me to know that Mr. Joseph F. Guffey, has given assurance that she will retain the office until the expiration of her former term. This assurance was delivered to me personally yesterday afternoon, by Mr. Guffey, over long distance.

Any allegations as to the successor at West Pittsburg is entirely without foundation or authority, until the findings of the examining board made public.

As to reports and rumors being freely circulated in regards to other post offices in the county, no changes are now nor will be considered until a vacancy exists, either thru expiration of the term, death or removal for cause, with the exception of the post office at Villa Marie, near New Bedford. This office advanced from a fourth class to a third class and the present incumbent, Miss Rose C. Pierson, was recommended by Congressman Swick for the appointment. On Sept. 1st, 1933, (prior to the primaries) I suggested her name for confirmation due to her general competency and efficiency in office and the lack of politics in her original appointment. I have received assurance from Washington, that she would receive the utmost consideration for the appointment at the proper time.

Respectfully submitted,

W. J. Baer

Detroit Wants Cochrane For New Manager

Baseball World Thinks Connie Mack Will Allow Cochrane To Become Manager

DENIALS MADE RIGHT AND LEFT

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service Sports Editor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Confidentially, meaning just to me and not more than a couple of hundred others, I learn today that, in spite of the fact that the Mickey Cochrane deal seems to be on, it is in fact and reality practically on, these statements seem to be confusing only because baseball is a comical and confusing profession. It does not indulge in normal behavior, so that it is possible for singular things to happen in a very commonplace way.

For example, if Mickey Cochrane is the man Owner Navin wants as his player-manager for 1934, and some unidentified car says so in advance, then Owner Navin seems to have no choice. He must then go out and hire the man he doesn't want and everybody winds up out in the backyard.

Just Two Sides.
Just for the records, therefore, I wish to state two sides of this story, as follows: First, that Cochrane did not know anything about a Detroit deal when he was in town three weeks ago. Second, that he has been out there in the meantime to see Owner Navin twice. A third item might be added to the effect that the astute Mr. Mack declared himself some months ago to the effect that Cochrane wouldn't be sold or traded and that might still go, although anybody who has unbounded faith in anything a baseball man tells him is bound to come to no good end.

It's about time for the stope masons to protest against the loose use of the word "chiseler."—Cincinnati Times-Star.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS' LAND

Elmer Layden, athletic director at Duquesne U. today denied reports that negotiations are under way whereby he will be connected with the Notre Dame football squad next season.

The fights of last Monday evening now out of the way, fans will look forward to next Monday and Tuesday nights when the tournament gets under way at the bowl. Practically all the boxers in this section have entered the meet. The eliminations will continue until the finals are staged at Pittsburgh and there will be eight champions in eight divisions. B. J. Blom, deputy of Commissioner Harvey Boyle, is hustling the entries along to Boyle. The fighters will be paired off when they gather at the bowl at 6 p. m. Monday. John Taylor, commissioner of the A. A. U., will handle the drawings.

Erie, long noted as one of the outstanding homes of bowling, will make its first bid for national recognition as a tourney center with the staging of the first annual singles sweepstakes December 9-10, 16-17.

"Red Hurricane" Must Improve

Coach Phil H. Bridenbaugh Stresses Importance Of New Kensington Game

TOUGHEST GAME ON 1933 CARD

New Castle High School "Red Hurricane" football team will have to be an improved team to defeat New Kensington High Saturday afternoon at New Kensington field. By an improved team, is meant, a better offensive attack than they displayed against Youngstown Chagney. A stiffer defense.

If New Castle attempts to play the same brand of football this week that they have played for the past few weeks, the hopes of a Class AA championship will only be an empty gesture.

The "Red Hurricane" has not played the kind of football yet that it is capable of. To be sure, the sons of Pa. New have won all of their games this year. But, had it not been for the breaks in the Youngstown game the locals would have been up against it. Several other games this year have had the earmark of this.

Turn On Power
If New Castle will only turn on that power that they have, and have given evidence of having several times, New Kensington is going to be in for trouble.

New Castle play the kind of football that has made them a feared machine throughout Western Pennsylvania, the work of Head Coach Bridenbaugh and his two very capable assistants, Bill Klee and "Big" Thomas will not have been in vain.

There is one game on the schedule this year that Phil Bridenbaugh wants to win, and you have guessed it, it is this New Kensington game. Nothing will be left undone this week in getting the "Red Hurricane" ready for the battle that is sure to come early Saturday on that hard surfaced New Kensington field.

Correct this sentence: "Yes, dear, you are spending more than I make," said the husband, "but don't worry about it."

Westminster And Grove City Prepare For Great Battle At Stadium Here Saturday

(Special To The News)
NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Nov. 1.—Defensive drills, aimed to stop the speedy Grove City backfield men, have marked the Westminster college football preparations for the game to be played Saturday at Taggart field, New Castle.

The Grovers have about as fast a quartet of backs as any college in the district in Deems, Orris, Gross, and Smith. A suitable defense to keep these ball carriers in check would appear to be the best solution according to Coaches Lawther and Martin.

Return to the Squad
The return to the squad of Arrow-smith, Laraway, Leyschack, Bloker, and Watt, all on the injured list for the last week, has bolstered the Titan strength considerably. It is thought that 20 players will be available for the game Saturday, and this will allow for substitutions which will be needed in a game marked by so intense a rivalry.

New Castle will take on a collegiate air Saturday as the student bodies of both schools trek into town. The Westminster and Grove City student bands will also be on hand, and will probably march to the stadium.

Pep Rally
Westminster students will prepare for the game with a pep rally Friday evening in the gymnasium. Walt Donaldson, varsity cheer leader, will be aided by the band in getting the student body set for the game. A number of speakers will be on the program, including some members of the football squad.

Westminster will wear royal blue uniforms in the game Saturday, while Grove City will wear red jerseys. Westminster students will occupy sections 1 and 3 in the stadium. Grove City students will occupy section 5. The student bands of each school will be seated in front of the cheering sections.

Coach John Lawther has been experimenting all week with punters, Leyschack, Sweeney, Arrow-smith, and Laraway have all improved in this department of the game. If three of these men are in the starting lineup, the Titans will have plenty of surprises in the kicking game.

Grove City Prepares
GROVE CITY, Nov. 1.—With a record of three victories and one tie in the first four games of the campaign, the Grove City college squad has started preparations for the final half of the season when four Tri-State conference rivals will be met on successive Saturdays. The first assignment, with Westminster Saturday at New Castle, will be a stiff test, since the Titans have always been noted for their defense.

The Grove City squad again escaped injury in its Saturday game, and with the exception of a few minor bruises, all the boys will be ready for the Westminster game. For this reason, Coach Amos will risk a scrimmage session Wednesday, in an effort to correct glaring offensive faults which developed in the Slippery Rock game. Westminster plays will be used in the scrimmage, and Amos hopes to develop an offense that will function more consistently than it has done in the early games.

A brief drill held yesterday was designed to improve the Crimson passing attack. The Grovers completed 8 out of 10 attempts against Slippery Rock, but failed to connect with any of the long passes. Alexander, who saw little action last week, will be in condition to play against the Titans, and this fact will help the passing attack. Yesterday, Amos had all of his backs throwing and receiving passes for an hour, and was satisfied with the improvement.

Facing the task of meeting Westminster, Waynesburg, Geneva and Thiel on successive Saturdays, the Grove City squad is scheduled for long drills, with scrimmages planned only when the need arises.

Saturday's Rival Coaches

Coach Williams E. (Bill) Amos

Coach Williams E. (Bill) Amos will stack his double-wing-back system up against Coach John D. Lawther's single-wing-back system at Taggart field Saturday afternoon at 2:30, and the annual Grove City-Westminster football game, a tradition since 1892, will draw a host of alumni and former students of both schools, many of whom will not know anything about systems, but all of whom will be interested in the score. Lawther is in his third year as Titan coach, and Amos is in his second year at Grove City.

Union Drilling Against Passes

Union Wants To Secure Victory Friday Over Bessemer High At Union Field

Union High school football team is hard at work this week drilling against forward passes. Bessemer has featured a forward passing attack all season that has fooled several teams, and Union wants to be able to match the Bessemer aerials. The game Friday at Union High field should be one of the best of the season.

Union may throw a few forward passes in the game. Coach Dave Boyd has the Unionites drilling on several tricky pass combinations, and may surprise the powerful Bessemer team.

Coach Frederick thinks that Bessemer will have little trouble in downing Union High. Shenango was defeated by Bessemer and the boys from out Bessemer way want to add Union to the string of victories.

QUIET TODAY

(International News Service)
NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The stock market took on a firmer tone today under the lead of the gold mining and liquor shares.

United States Smelting and Homestake were in the van of the upturn in the metals with gains of 1 to 3 points, while Alaska Juneau, Dome and McIntyre scored lesser advances.

National Distillers came in for some short covering and long buying. Schenley, American Commercial Alcohol, and Commercial Solvents were quiet and steady.

The steels including United States Steel and Bethlehem were quiet and fractionally higher reflecting the payment of the 50 percent U. S. Steel preferred dividend yesterday and the sharp improvement in earnings.

Railroad shares were quiet and slightly irregular. The utilities showed a slightly better tone today following yesterday's acute weakness which sent Consolidated Gas to a new low for the year before support appeared.

Motor stocks were slightly higher under the lead of Chrysler. Farm Implement shares moved higher in sympathy with wheat.

The commodity markets improved somewhat with wheat and corn up fractionally. Cotton was steady around yesterday's close.

ELLWOOD HAS MEMORABLE CELEBRATION OF HALLOWE'ENThree Thousand In Line As Parade Moves Thru
StreetsFour Bands In Line; Burgess Turner Expresses Appreciation

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 1.—Exceeding expectations Ellwood City held one of the most successful Halloween celebrations in its history. Without a doubt it was the largest. It attracted people from the surrounding country districts, Zellenople and Beaver Valley.

As the hour for the parade neared, the principal streets of the city presented an atmosphere of awe, excitement, and color as over 3,500 men, women, and children participated in this annual colorful event. Other thousands lined the streets of the route of the parade to watch the summers pass.

Weather Is Pleasant
Everything went for the best last evening. The weather man smiled upon the city and left nothing wanting. It was a beautiful still night with the moon and stars out with their best splendor, adding to the weirdness of the occasion with its fearful shadows. It certainly was a night that the speakers could be abroad and hold a big convention, and it seemed that the entire local public was out to view this annual event.

Ghosts, goblins, devils, and witches walked and talked in accord last night for one purpose—to make merry. Pearls of laughter could be heard throughout the night as the mummies followed the route of the parade. The costumes, antics, and equipment of the mummies was enough to make anyone forget their worries. Music, noise and cheers reverberated from the city for hours.

Parade Well Handled
The event went off without a hitch. General Chairman Burgess Judd C. Turner and his various committees had the mummies placed in their respective groups and the parade started off on schedule. Members of the Ellwood City police force and their assistants handled the traffic and mammoth crowd with an experienced hand. The judging was done by members of the local Kiwanis Club while the parade was following an outlined route. Cards were given the winners in the various divisions. They are to call for their awards at the Chamber of Commerce anytime today. Exactly 162 prizes have been donated by local merchants who also aided in getting the parade started.

The parade formed on Line avenue where all descriptions of costumes were seen, including a number of decorated automobiles. One in particular and its occupants were relics of the past. The parade then moved down North street and across the Fifth street bridge, thence westward on Lawrence avenue to Eighth street, and north on Eighth street to the P. & L. E. grounds where the parade disbanded and the final judging was completed.

Four Bands Play
The affair by no means lacked music. There were four bands in the parade. Three were scheduled in it, the fourth came of its own volition as a part of the mummies and parade. The parade was led by the crack Legion Bugle and Drum Corps, resplendent in their red uniforms. The fine Ellwood City High school band in their uniforms appeared in the center of the parade. In an another section came the local Italian band and the other separate group.

The event was something that was not soon to be forgotten. Local citizens awoke this morning with smiles of pleasure as they recollected the events of the past evening. They were not long in realizing that they had work ahead of them. The street department had already been hard at work cleaning up paper, confetti and corn. Many porches and yards had to be cleared and scrubbed of over ripe fruit and vegetables. Many Halloween pranks were performed during the night, but a survey by police revealed that there was no damage to property.

Burgess Turner extends his appreciation and thanks to all those having a hand in making the annual Halloween celebration last night, the success it was.

Why Amendment No. 8 Needs Approval In State, Relief Work At Stake

"Why should I vote for Amendment No. 8 on the ballot on November 7?" is a question voters are asking themselves just now. "Where does the money go, can the state bond itself for more than $25,000,000, and will it raise my taxes?"

All of them are good questions and all deserve an answer. First of all "where does the money go?"

Act 262, passed by the 1933 session of the General Assembly and signed by Governor Pinchot on May 26, says: "Be it enacted, that the sum of $20,000,000 is hereby specifically appropriated to the State Emergency Relief Board for the purposes hereinafter named, contingently upon the adoption of a certain proposed amendment to article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania."

For Relief Purposes.

This means just what it says. If the bond issue passes, twenty millions of the twenty five millions will be set aside for relief purposes this winter. If the bond issue falls there will be no money in the state treasury for relief purposes, the federal government will refuse to appropriate funds unless the state matches them and the burden will be thrown back on to the local districts.

There is no mistake about the state treasury being bare. By December 1 it will be as bare as a wheat granary in the late spring. The state cannot pluck funds out of the air any more than the individual can, but the needy must be fed.

The argument that more state taxes can be levied is fallacious when it is remembered that it would at least be three months before the taxes would come in and in the meantime the hungry would starve. The stock argument that the state can reduce some of the salaries paid also falls when it is remembered that the total state payroll is about two million dollars per year. This could not possibly put twenty million dollars into the state treasury.

Can Cut Institutions.

The state has one way of getting relief money which is the first call upon the state just now. It can cut the hospital appropriations, cut the school and college appropriations and still not get more than half the amount of what is needed. The answer seems to point directly at more local taxes to provide local funds for relief unless Amendment 8 passes.

"Will it increase my taxes?" The answer is NO, not a dime. The state gets its money from corporation taxes, inheritance taxes, mercantile taxes, and gross revenue taxes from transportation and power companies. It does not get a cent of its state revenue from the average citizen unless he has stocks that are taxable by the state. It will not affect real estate taxes one iota if it is passed, but real estate taxes may have to be raised by the communities if the amendment fails.

Pennsylvania has no bonded indebtedness save for the road bonds which are paid out of gasoline and motor fees. If Amendment 8 is passed it will bond the state for $25,000,000 and this will be the only bonded indebtedness the state will have.

Pennsylvania has been receiving millions from the federal government under the agreement that the state would match these millions for relief when the bond issue passed. If it fails, the state has not kept faith with the federal government and will probably cut itself off from further federal funds.

Briefly the situation is this. If the people of the state want the hungry fed and the needy clothed this winter, if they want work relief money to continue state projects and keep men working, if they want their schools and colleges and hospitals untouched, then Amendment 8 must be passed.

To raise $25,000,000 by direct taxation in a short time the state would have to levy prohibitive taxes. New York is passing a similar bond issue amendment on November 7 but their bond issue is for $60,000,000.

To defeat Amendment 8 on November 7 is to invite disaster. To defeat Amendment 8 is to invite the problem of relief of the needy placed squarely up to each local community. The hungry must be fed, there is no other way around this.

Amendment number 8 offers the solution to the problem and apparently the only solution. It is endorsed by all factions of the state government, by the leaders of all the political parties and should in all charity be passed.

Vote Yes on Amendment 8 at the polls on November 7 and save your state and community from tragedy and disaster and save yourself from higher taxes.
